21 If you have the means, the time, and the desire to go, even alone, do it. I drove to the Carson City rally in October alone and it was amazing; a once in a lifetime experience. Meeting new people and learning about their walks of life is very refreshing.

Obviously, this one is probably different. Moderate chances of confrontation and/or escalation. If it were me, if I were to go alone, I'd be there for the day, then try to GTFO before it gets dark. This is assuming you don't want to be involved in the potential violence.

14 You shouldn't tell anyone not to go. Trump needs us all. What are you expecting to happen?

Edit for warning on these asshole posts telling people not go. Read what our French friends who tried and failed at this said here a week ago:

“ Before the 6th of January, you HAVE to know what the enemy is going to do, what's going to happen to the Trump/Constitution supporters. The Yellow Vests in France already tried to take the institutions 2 years ago and failed miserably. Here's why. Spread in the country A lot of French demonstrated in their own town. They wanted to show that all the country was supporting the movement. It was a mistake, too bad for them: the ONLY WAY to overthrow a national swamp is to go to the capital and to focus yourselves on the political institutions. There is no other way. If you want Trump to be President the 6th of January, you probably have to be ONE MILLION patriots in Washington DC, to outnumber the enemy. Take care:

probably they will try you to organize other meetings and demonstrations across the country,

1 Food & drink is crucial - smart vendors will make out like bandits. Bands are a great idea because they have loud speakers which are crucial for organizing crowds.

permalink parent save report block reply

▲ HeavyMetalPatriot 6 days ago +1 / -0

1 You are correct that tear gas should be expected - but its a tactic vs. smaller crowds. When the crowd is hundreds of thousands, it's less effective and could backfire on them. It should be planned for. But it's not alien acid and shouldn't be a reason anyone stays home.

13 ▼ So I'm thinking of going, I have time off from work due to COVID, but on the other end of that double edged sword I'm scraping by right now. I just looked and airline tickets are around 500$ round trip, and that's just on the edge of what I can afford, but when factoring in other costs like hotel and travel it keeps it out of reach for me. I'm a stoic, so I would be perfectly fine in a tent, but that's more to either bring, or purchase when I'm there. I don't want to put anybody out, but if there was anybody willing to pick me up from an airport and let me carpool with them, and also let me buy a tent from amazon and have it sent to their house, then I might be able to pull this off, but otherwise I don't think I'm gonna be able to go.

I'm in Los Angeles, and I'd be willing to fly in anywhere within driving distance of DC.

Careful. Many of the Antifa & BLM looters are still being identified/arrested months later after the riots using earlier in the day pictures and livestreams from when things were still a peaceful protest/march. Or so my sources in big city law enforcement tell me, just try not to capture faces in case things go sideways and patriots have to do patriot things.

Not kenetically per se, but disrupting authorities from establishing a clearly defined perimeter needs thought out.

Also any pedes/trucking want to have a few vics loaded to resupply food/water etc

4 I wish I knew some people from Connecticut going. I would just need a ride there and back.

3 What are the predicted scenarios and outcomes on January 6th?

What I'm hoping for:

- Trump gathers everyone for a big speech
- Pence officially announces Trump won
- A video presentation of all the evidence in a digestible format like the Navarro report, played on jumbotrons 24/7 to explain it all
- A giant sing-along of the national anthem spontaneously breaks out all over DC
- Antifa is outnumbered and is easily repelled

... and is summarized, and is easily reopened high ranking swamp creature. Big tech as well.

January 20th comes triumphantly as icing on the cake.

Trump finishes his term in 2024, and maybe continues on longer if the swamp is still not drained. The Dem's completely crumble as a party, and RINO's and the less radical Dem's start a rival party, which begins the long game having been RESET back many decades. Censorship is gone. Radical education and indoctrination is gone. All the groundwork the commies build for decades is beyond repair, and Americans will be redpilled for at least a generation before there's any chance of their return to power.

Have I missed anything here?

I think you are pretty much on the mark.

I am guessing he will have 270 by the 6th. It is starting to "feel" that way to me.

Feelings don't count for anything, but it is a hunch.

Have the election numbers shifted yet or will this all be at once?

Try a bit further out from the city. We found a nice room for under $90 in Fredericksburg.

2 Best site I've found for joining other groups or getting a seat/sharing lodging:
<https://g.cloudbase.com/group/patriot-caravans-for-45>

For Texans: <https://g.cloudbase.com/group/texas-patriots-caravan>

Not too organized, but decently active.

Don't bother with state capitals, the beach, the highway, or some random park. January 6th is not the time for raising general awareness. The goal is to get into these politicians faces!

2 Consider sponsoring someone to go on your behalf. There are a lot of people with the available time but running short on other resources.
